

Let's go for a walk/hike on the Sunday after the Reunion Party!

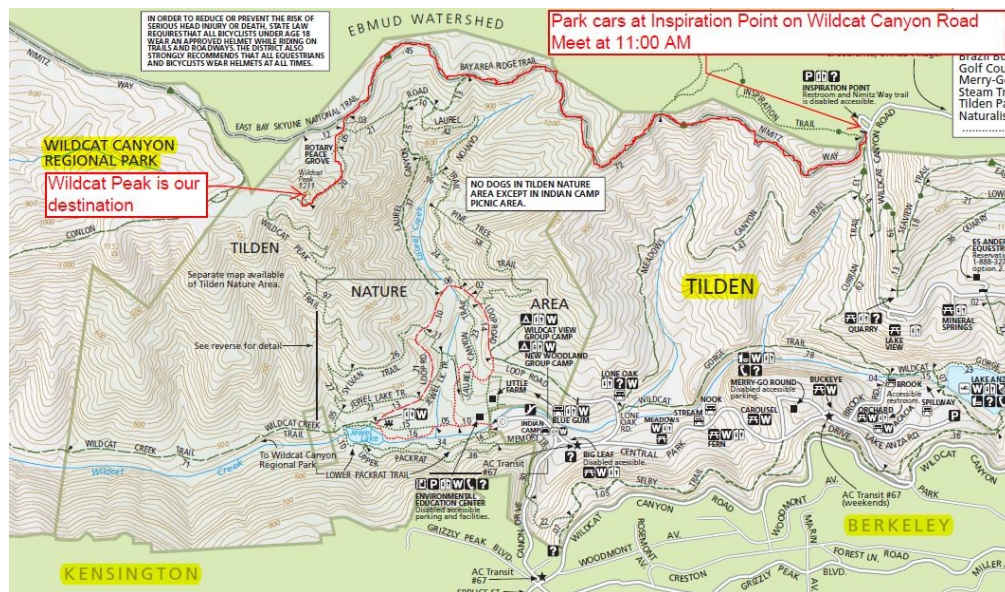

Sunday is forecast to be warm and sunny and it would, I think, be fun to go for a walk with some of my ECHS 1964 classmates in Tilden Park and Wildcat Canyon. I've picked a fairly easy walk that is partly on the paved Nimitz Way leading north from Inspiration Point and partly on the trails that lead up through the Rotarian Peace Grove to Wildcat Peak. The terrain generally rolls up and down, with some (not too much) sustained climbing as we mount the peak.

Wildcat Peak affords great views in all directions, back and south to Mt. Diablo, west to San Francisco and the Bay, and north to Suisun Bay.

I'll be at the Inspiration Point parking area a bit before 11:00 a.m., hoping to see some like-minded classmates ready to set out for this easy under-five-mile-round-trip jaunt. If you come, please wear comfortable walking shoes, carry water, and bring a camera or camera/smartphone.

Here's a map showing the location of the Inspiration Point parking area, the road (Wildcat Canyon Road) leading to it, and our intended walk marked in red.

I hope to see you there! John Falconer
